July 31, 2017

Dubai, UAE

(DUBAI, UAE)—Andrews Kurth Kenyon DMCC is pleased to announce that energy and infrastructure partner Patricia Tiller has been named the managing partner of the firm's Dubai office.

The office will continue its focus on transactional energy and infrastructure in the key markets of the UAE, Iraq, Egypt and East Africa.

“Patricia’s work on complex projects throughout the Middle East and Africa make her well-qualified to lead our efforts in this important region,” said Bob Jewell, managing partner, Andrews Kurth Kenyon LLP.

In addition to Ms. Tiller, the firm’s Middle East practice will be led by partners James Comyn, Christopher F. Richardson and Mark J. Thurber, all of whom have deep regional legal experience in mergers & acquisitions, upstream & midstream energy, liquefied natural gas, renewable energy, infrastructure and project finance.

“Recent mandates have seen our Middle East office expand its client base to include national and international energy companies, midstream companies, institutional investors and private equity funds active in the energy industry,” said Ms. Tiller.

Ms. Tiller will step into the role most recently occupied by Hugh Fraser, who will re-establish his legal consulting practice.
